ABSTRACT

This research attempted to describe the ability of the third year students at Bung Hatta University who registered in academic year 2010/2011. The design of this research was descriptive research. The total number of population was 112. They were distributed in three classes. The writer used cluster random sampling technique to choose sample. The number of samples was 30 students. The writer used writing test to get the data. The data was analyzed based on the result of writing test, the writer presented the raw score, calculated the students’ score, mean, standard deviation (SD), and classified the students who got high, moderate, or low ability. The percentage of students who had moderate ability was 18 students (60%). In more specific, their ability in writing content was moderate. It was proved by the fact that 22 students (73.33%) had moderate ability. Their ability in organizing idea was moderate. It was proved by the fact that 19 students (63.33%) had moderate ability. Their ability in using vocabulary was moderate. It was proved by the fact that 17 students (56.67%) had moderate ability. Their ability in using grammar was moderate. As a matter of fact, 17 students (56.67%) had moderate ability, and their ability in applying mechanics was also moderate. It was proved by the fact that 17 students (56.67%) had moderate ability.

Introduction

English is one of compulsory subject at junior high school, senior high school and a university. English is international language is very important to connect with other people from other country. According to Jin (2009:1), English as an international language is regarded as a very important means of communication.

There are many countries in the world that use English as their international languages such as America, Brazil, and Argentina. According to Richard and Schmidt (2002:180) English is an international Language and the commonest in the world that use for international business, trade, travel and communication. English has become popular in many countries in the world since many years ago. Besides, in Indonesia English has been a part of subject education.

There are four language skills that should be mastered by English learners. They are listening, speaking, reading, and writing. Among them, writing is one of important skills to be mastered by students. Writing is a language skill that used to communicate indirectly. There are some types in writing they are writing sentence, paragraph and essay. Essay is the basic unit of organization in writing that consists of more than paragraph. They are five kinds of essay. They are analytical report, persuasive essay, objective report, argumentative essay, and expository essay. According to Willis in Putri (2000) expository essay is a kind of that give explanation, clarification, information about issues, idea and opinion. This essay is important to be mastered by the English Department students. So, they should have good ability in writing expository essay.

Based on syllabus IV, writing an expository essay was taught to the third year students of English Department of Bung Hatta University. Writer though that the students who were studying in the fifth semester had a good ability in writing essay, especially in writing expository essay.

Based on the writer’s informal interview with some of the third year students at Bung Hatta University Padang on Wednesday June 8th 2013, it was found that they got difficulties in writing expository essay. They said that they got problems in organizing ideas, using grammar, using vocabulary, and applying mechanics.

The writer focused this research at third year students at English Department of Bung Hatta University. The purpose of this research was to describe the third year students’ ability to expository essay at Bung Hatta University. Specifically, to describe the third year students’ ability at Bung Hatta University to write content, organizing ideas, using vocabulary, using the correct grammar, using appropriate word vocabulary, and applying the correct mechanics in writing indirect expository essay.

Methodology
This research used descriptive design which describes the ability of the students in writing expository essay. Gay (1987:189) states that descriptive study involves collecting data in order to answer questions concerning to the status of the subject of the study. Descriptive research is used to measure or describe the problem in the field in order to get fact or real information.

The population of this research was the third year students of Bung Hatta University have registered year 2010/2011. The total number of population was 112 students and they were distributed in three classes.

In this research, to select the sample, the researcher used cluster random sampling. This technique was used because the population is distributed in groups or classes. Random sampling was used because the members of population have the same characteristics or homogeneous. They had the same curriculum, syllabus, and learning materials.

To select the sample, the writer wrote all the names of each class on a small piece of paper and then puts them into a box. After shaking the box and she took one of the papers in the box with closed eyes. The class that the writer took class c as the real test sample. And another as a try out test.

To get the data, the writer used the instrument. The instrument used to collect the data in this research was writing test. Here, the researcher asked the students to write indirect dialogue in 90 minutes. The writer gave three topics and asked the students to choose one of them. The topics were: The Benefit of Using Internet, The Global Warming Effect, and Nicotine as the most Dangerous Drug. The aspects that the writer gave score were: the content, the organizing ideas, appropriate words, grammar and the mechanics in writing expository essay.

Before giving the test, the writer did try out of the test to the students out of the sample. The functions of try out were to see whether the time allocation is enough or not, and to see whether the students understand the instruction or not. Besides, it was also used to find out the reliability of test.

A good test should be valid and reliable. To see the validity of the test, the researcher used content validity. Brown (2004:22) states that one of the types of validity is content validity. It means that the test is valid if it fixes with the materials that have been given to the students. This test was constructed based on syllabus and teaching materials. To find out the reliability of the test, the writer used inter-rater method. It means that there were two scorers (scorer 1 and scorer 2). This method was also used to minimize the subjectivity in scoring.

In analyzing data, the writer used the procedures: (i) Present the raw from score two scorers (ii) Count the average score of two scorers by using the formula:

\text{Score 1 + Score 2} \div 2

(iii) Calculate the Mean (M) and Standard Deviation (SD)

M = \frac{\Sigma x}{N}

SD = \sqrt{\frac{\Sigma x^2}{N} - \left[\frac{\Sigma x}{N}\right]^2}

(iv) Classify the students’ ability into high, moderate, and low ability using the following categories:

- >M + 1SD = High ability
- M – 1 SD \rightarrow M + 1SD = Moderate ability
- <M – 1 SD = Low ability

(v) Calculate the number and percentage of the students who get high, moderate, and low ability. The researcher used this formula:

P = \frac{R}{T} \times 100

Where:

- P = percentage of the students’ score
- R = the sum of the students who get high, moderate, and low ability
- T = the sum of the students

Findings and Discussions

Finding:

1. Students’ Ability in Writing Expository Essay

   Based on the criteria of scoring, the highest possible score was 100 and the lowest possible score was 47. The result of data analysis showed that the students’ ability in writing expository essay was moderate. It was proved by fact that 6 students (20%) got high ability, 18 students (60%) got moderate ability and 6 students (20%) got low ability (see Appendix 10). To make sure, see Table below:
